Excitement AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

P.F. RYAN & CO.,

Madison and Peoria-sts.

Still Continues.

THE RUSH ON Our Cloak Department,

Without exaggeration, is unparalleled, but easily accounted for in the fact that we have gained a reputation for representing goods to be exactly what they are, and giving value received in every instance, as in the case with Cloaks, more especially Seal or Seal Plush. Ladies not familiar with these garments should look to it in making their purchases that they are not deceived. Our aim this season is to make a record for our Cloak Department of which we can be justly proud, and ladies making purchases or leaving their orders with us shall be pleased in every instance. Any style or any manufacture of Cloak or Wrap will be found in this department that is shown in any State-st. store, the main difference being the price, which is invariably onethird to 40 per cent less.

No Room Above, SO DOWN BELOW TO LLOYD'S Busy Basement

Goes a great portion of a JOBBER'S STOCK OF CLOAKS,

Which Lloyd has just bought for spot cash, and TOMORROW down in that basement will be

A Scene of Wild Excitement,

A Carnival—A Cloak Fight!

For this entire stock will be rushed off with one of Lloyd's Rash Rushes.

The sale will represent

The Loss of $1,250.00 in Clean Money.

That is, the prices that Lloyd will sell these Cloaks at when added altogether will fall twelve hundred and fifty dollars short of what it cost to make them—not our loss, thank fortune.

But Our Glory—Your Gain.

The entire stock condensed into THREE LOTS. All Cloaks in a lot sold at a uniform price.

In Lot 1

Will be put all garments ranging in value from $[illegible] to $[illegible]. Choice of the lot for $3.49.

Seeing is believing. Come and see 'em.

In Lot 2

Will be put all garments worth from $[illegible] to $[illegible]. Choice in lot, $4.73.

Worth from $[illegible] to $[illegible].

Lot 3

Will contain all the highest priced garments in this whole stock, and they range from $[illegible] up to $[illegible]. Choice of the choicest,

$6.95.

Worth from $[illegible] to $[illegible].

GRAND COMBINATION SALE!

S. M. ROTHSCHILD.

The rapid growth and development of the Northwest has enriched the country at large; Villages and Cities have sprung up by the thousands; Chicago, as the Metropolis of the West, ranks third as a commercial centre in the Union; our rigid winters and sudden changes of temperature necessitate a natural desire for food, shelter, and clothing. Now that the Presidential election at issue is soon coming to a close and the cold Winter stares us in the face, the next great question arises,

WHERE SHALL WE BUY OUR DRY GOODS?

In this enlightened age and free country every adult is at liberty to go where he pleases; the city is adorned with two hundred and forty-six Dry-Goods Stores. A few are large wholesale houses, but a large majority are retail stores; some say they have "Palaces of Trade," others are styled "Dry-Goods Princes." In late years the Dry-Goods stores have been adulterated with all sorts of rattle traps, such as toys, chamber-sets, patent medicines, millinery, ready-made clothing, museums, and even living curiosities! And, when the sturdy pedestrian has been all around he will come to the sensible conclusion that

I KEEP THE ONLY DRY GOODS STORE IN CHICAGO!

The size of the store cuts no figure for the prudent purchaser to get suited in whatever one is in need of; to save the hard-earned money for a rainy day and old age is everybody's duty. Beware of firms who advertise one special article very cheap, to entice the unwary, and charge outlandish big profits on everything else. I defy competition in quoting such a long list of low prices as I publish below for the special benefit of our industrious shoppers, or show the public such a Magnificent, Mammoth Stock of Dry Goods. No trouble or expense is shirked to please everybody; no trouble to show goods to customers, may they be rich or may they be unfortunately poor. To please and give satisfaction to everybody is my motto. Is the eager bargain-hunter exhausted walking around the city? has priced and looked at goods to his heart's content? then let him send to New York, Boston, or Philadelphia for samples, and then come to me and

I Will Save You Lots of Money!

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The President has pardoned Defaulter Wm. James S. Wanless. The petition was presented to-day. Wanless should be returned to the penitentiary. His term would have expired Sunday next.

[Wanless is the Western man who succeeded in obtaining $10,000 from Secretary Folger by threatening to expose the latter's connection with the Star Route frauds. Folger paid the money, but Wanless was arrested, convicted, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. He has served about one year.]

"Certainly I do," replied the lawyer. "You ought to be afraid to associate your conscience with such a man."

"Well," said Mr. A. thoughtfully, "I can't remember there ever was anybody but I would have been afraid to associate with. There was one man I thought a heap of, but I'm afraid he wouldn't associate with me. He learned a heap of things from me, and now he—"

NO MORE POKER FOR HIM.

Wm. James S. Wanless, Who Combined with Confidential Money, Extorted.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The President has pardoned Defaulter Wm. James S. Wanless. The petition was presented to-day. Wanless should be returned to the penitentiary. His term would have expired Sunday next.

[Wanless is the Western man who succeeded in obtaining $10,000 from Secretary Folger by threatening to expose the latter's connection with the Star Route frauds. Folger paid the money, but Wanless was arrested, convicted, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. He has served about one year.]

"Certainly I do," replied the lawyer. "You ought to be afraid to associate your conscience with such a man."

"Well," said Mr. A. thoughtfully, "I can't remember there ever was anybody but I would have been afraid to associate with. There was one man I thought a heap of, but I'm afraid he wouldn't associate with me. He learned a heap of things from me, and now he—"

But he wasn't allowed to finish, for the barber threw over him with a look of wrath that introduced serious discussion to the barber trade.

The surviving descendants of Gen. Hancock, as will his epitaph, was [illegible]. In all things he died charity. Even science was of his service. He suggested to Sidney the question which to-day [illegible] necessity of supplying good [illegible] of supervision. Not [illegible] the day that was set apart [illegible] a man [illegible], but down to [illegible] till the close of his accidentally and his medical men mentioned, among [illegible] which, and back of all [illegible], and to the end of his life, his private [illegible] that of friends, from the [illegible] the names of a great [illegible] and of an honest patriot and of an honest [illegible] and generous American to mourn.
